

Cindy has been on the board for over a year and served as chair of the communications committee in 2022. She has worked with a number of Alaska's legislative and governor's office officials. She served as the Executive Director for the Alaska Network on Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault and has been a strong advocate for abused and neglected children. She has worked in Head Start, day care assistance, child care, and education and training programs. Her background includes arts education. Through nonprofit work, she is very familiar with finances and fundraising. Cindy has used each of the services provided by the state library, archives, and museum and enjoys volunteering her time and expertise to help continue that tradition.

She serves on the Friends of the Alaska State Library, Archives and Museum board because it is so important to record and reflect on the histories and cultures of this state. She wants to help ensure that the extraordinary collections of the Alaska State Library, Archives and Museum are available to Alaskans now and in the future. In the coming year, she hopes to continue to bring more people into the Father Andrew P. Kashevaroff (APK) building through concerts, lectures and the like, and to increase public awareness of what each agency can offer.
